Your Corns Will Never Ache Again

That may sound too good to be true, but it isn't. It can be a positive fact as soon as you care to make it so. All you need to do is to examine your corn, find out what it is and why it hurts, and you will see at once how easily the pain

First, rid your mind of the absurd notion that a corn is some sort of deep-rooted growth, and that this imaginary "root" must be removed before you can obtain relief. That is an idea fostered by the manufacturers of those dangerous, chemically made "plasters," pastes, etc., which are designed to "eat" out the hard part of the corn. You can imagine what a chemical strong enough to eat dead tissue might do to live tissue! Many cases of blood-poisoning have resulted from this dangerous practice.

Furthermore, there isn't any "root" to a corn. Note the small space between the hard part of your corn and the bone beneath, and you will see that there can't be! A corn is a perfectly ordinary callous, caused by the rubbing of your shoe. The pain comes from the pressure of this hard lump upon the sensitive nerves beneath, so it is perfectly plain that to stop the pain you must remove the pressure.

Pare down the hard part of your corn with ANTICOR, the Perfect Safety Corn Shaver. That is the method of the skilled Chiropodist. He doesn't use "plasters;" he knows better. ANTICOR is absolutely safe. It is easy to use. It is always at hand. Its relief is immediate. You can buy ANTICOR for 25 cents at any Drug, Department or Hardware Store, and almost any Haberdasher's, Barber Shop, Stationery Store or Shoe Store.

Don't fool around with "plasters" which cannot help you and may do terrible harm. Use the logical method—the simple, safe, efficient, easy-to use ANTICOR. Ask your doctor or your dealer, or both.
